Poetical.

A Breezy Summer Idyl.

Somebody writes about "A Woman's Veil" in the Boston Courier—and here are half a dozen of his verses:

It was full many a season since,
When I was summering at Cape May.
They had a foolish fashion then—
Mayhap they have the same to-day—
That every lady in the dance,
If pleased with any, should not fail
Unto the partner she preferred
To give her veil.

And there was one I mind me of,
Whose name—well, never mind her name;
Helen or Alice, Blanche, or Maude,
To you who read will be the same.
But that old fashion of the veils
Haply recalls the past, and stirs
Memories that cluster round the night
She gave me hers.

She flushed, poor child, in giving it,
And I, too, felt my brow grow warm,
As laughingly, with fingers deft,
She knotted it about my arm;
And though the color on her cheek
Was like the light in morning skies,
I thought I saw a holier dawn
Within her eyes.

The dance was over and we strolled
Out from the ball-room's glittering press,
To meet the breeze that many armed
Clasped each one in cool caress;
And sauntering on we reached the sea—
The far waltz music's cadence sweet,
Mixed with the sound of waves that died
About our feet.

We talked of what I now forget,
But carelessly, or seeming so,
Next day I was to leave, but then
In town we'd meet again, you know.
Ah, well-a-day! the gods dispose,
And ruined hopes are worse than vain;
She laughed good-by—I never saw
Her face again.

* * * * * * *

Life's sad puzzle, and our hearts
Grow faint in searching for the clue;
She went before at twenty-five,
And I live on at fifty-two—
And wait the end; for well I know
That I shall meet her without fail,
On some Spring morning—and till then
I keep the veil.

ARABIAN STORIES DOWN THE NILE.

It is wonderful how much pleasure Orientals manage to get out of a trumpery tale. As you float down the sacred river, for example, leaving Nubia and the cataracts, and the reaches of Syene far behind, and pass islets dozing in the lull of waters, green corn fields, palmy slopes, shadowy dells, and mounds with ruined temples which on a sunny afternoon look like a landscape of Claude, you are forever hearing the hum of the story-teller to his group on the fore. As the sun went down, the sailors would invariably snuggle together in the dusk, Abdallah having no longer a scattered or casual group of listeners, and under the dewy glimmer of a lantern at the mast, look and move like spectres as they listen to some terrible climax in the traditional story. Like opium, it seemed to soothe the nerves and take off the deadness of indolence. Our dragomen once translated for us some of these tales. They were not without point, and were thoroughly characteristic of Eastern life. Fancy the story-teller, hemmed in by bare-chested, open-mouthed, turbaned listeners, as intoning and see-sawing, he narrates as follows:

Once upon a time there lived on the edge of the desert a Sheik named Ben Achma. Now this man was a philosopher, who, gathering wisdom from every passing adversity, as a leech culls simples, had come to possess quite a hoard of it. He was still in the pride of manhood. His renown, however, had waxed so great that even old men from the neighboring tribes, distant far from as the sunset oasis—came to submit their quarrels to him and abide by his judgment. One day a caravan from Meshid encamped near his dwelling. Two Arabs, watering their camels at the well, discoursed about the wisdom of the Kadi of Meshid. "He can repeat the Koran," said one, "from the Fattha to the end without dropping a point." "He cuts through deceit as with a knife," answered the other.

Ben Achma, smoking his afternoon chibouque under the shadow of a palm, on hearing this arose.

"Tell me, O brother," said he, "who is this man thou art so eager to praise?"

"What then, thou dolt?" replied the camel driver. "Hast thou not heard of Haleel, Kadi of Meshid? Allah!—Even the Father of the Faithful himself is a green tree before him."

"Dolt!" muttered the Sheik to himself, as he walked home musing, "and yet I am called Ben Achma the Wise."

Next morning Ben Achma saddled his horse, and disguising himself as a merchant, started for Meshid to see the sage himself. As he journeyed, an old man met him on the way who said: "My lord, I, like thyself am traveling to the next town, but I am weary. Pray permit me to ride." Ben Achma made a sign of assent, and the pilgrim climbed up behind. When they had come to the gates of Meshid, the Sheik desired his companion to get down.

"Nay," said he, "it is for thee to alight."

"And wherefore?" asked Ben Achma.

"To leave the horse with me," replied the pilgrim.

"But," cried the Sheik, "the horse is mine."

"I know," answered the old vagabond, "that we are now in the city of the just Kadi, and that when he shall have set eyes on us two—thou with thy lusty limbs and brave looks, and me with my trembling knees and feeble frame—he will decide in simple equity that the horse belongs to him who has the most need of him."

"If he decide contrary to that which is true and right," returned the Sheik, "he is not the just Kadi thou sayest. Nevertheless, I will profit by the evil doing and judge his equity. Let us plead before him." The old man agreed and both started for the court. They had to wait while two cases took the precedence. The first of these bore upon a quarrel before a butcher and an oil merchant. Both men were in court standing before the Kadi—the one grimy with oil, the other bespattered with blood. The butcher said, "I went to buy oil at this knave's shop, and, in order to pay him, I pulled out a handful of money whereof to take a coin. The sight of the gold moved his lust, and he seized my hand, pretending I had robbed him. I kept it closed, however, notwithstanding that in the presence of an officer he laid his claim. And here it is now." The oil merchant deposed:—"This rascal came to buy oil, and, when I filled his bottle, 'Gazter,' said he to me, 'can you change me a gold piece?' I not suspecting him, drew open my drawer, from which he clutched a handful and would have fled. The money is mine. I ask but justice."

"Leave the money here," said the Kadi, "and come back to-morrow.

The second case was a disagreement between a laborer and a school-master touching a woman. The latter affirmed that the great hulking rustic had run away with his wife. The former declared that the woman had been married to him many a year. The Kadi said, "leave the woman here, and come back to-morrow."

And now it came to the turn of Ben Achma and the astute old pilgrim.—"My Lord Kadi," said the Sheik, "I was on my way to your city when this miscreant came up and craved permission to ride. In a moment of weakness I assented, and now he claims the horse upon the foregoing conclusion that you will assign him to the one that needs him most."

The Kadi said, "Leave the horse and come back to-morrow."

So the gold was put in the coffer, the woman in the harem, and the horse in the Kadi's stables. Early on the morrow the litigants appeared. First the oil merchant and the butcher.

"You affirm," said the Kadi to the former, "that the butcher stole the money from your till, and yet the coins, when placed in a cup of water, show no sign of oil. You never handled the money with your greasy fingers. I adjudge the money to the butcher, and thirty stripes to you."

The disputed wife now came forward. "Seeing," said the Kadi, "that two men lay claim to the same woman, and that neither can justify their claim, I directed her to arrange my desk. She has cleaned and filled my ink-horn, and adjusted my sponge, sorted my pens, arranged my papers, and placed my chair. She evidently belongs to the school master. The laborer will receive thirty stripes."

Now came the turn of Ben Achma and the pilgrim. "Make these men follow me to the stable," said the Kadi. They were taken in separately, Ben Achma first. "Pick out the horse you claim," said his worship, "I have him here," said the Sheik, walking up to a stall. "Good! go out and let the pilgrim come in." Do you recognize your horse, my friend?" "My horse! Yes, I should know him among a hundred!" said the villain. "There he is."

The magistrate returned, took his place on the divan, and forthwith adjudged the horse to Ben Achma, while the old man was condemned to suffer fifty lashes. "May it please your lordship," said the Sheik, making a profound obeisance after the session, "upon what did you base your judgment of the ownership of the horse?" The magistrate replied, "when you laid your hand upon the horse the animal neighed in recognition to his friend, but when the pilgrim laid his hand upon him, he shrank from the touch of a strangers."

During the three weeks we were floating from Thebes to Cairo, every day brought some new object of interest—every night some drowsing story, to which our swarth companions listened with unabated attention. One night, when the rim of the red sun had just disappeared behind the western hills.—Abdallah began a story that seemed to enchain unusual attention. I give it as nearly as possible, in our dragoman's words.

"My friends," says the story-teller, "I am about to relate a true history. In the reign of Caliph Haroun al Raschid, of happy memory, lived in the city of Bagdad a celebrated barber of the name of Ali Sakal. He was so famous for a steady hand and dexterity that he could shave a head and trim a beard blind-folded without drawing blood. There was not a man of any fashion in Bagdad who did not employ him; and such a run of business had he that he became proud and insolent, and would scarcely ever touch a head whose owner was not at least a Bey or an Agha. Wood for fuel was always scarce and dear at Bagdad, and, as this barber's shop consumed a great deal, the wood-cutters brought their loads to him in preference, almost sure of meeting a ready sale. It happened one day that a poor wood cutter, new in his business, and ignorant of the character of Ali Sakal, went to the shop and offered him a load of wood he had just brought into town on his ass. Ali immediately offered a price, making use of these words, "for all the wood that was upon the ass." The wood cutter agreed, unloaded his beast, and asked for his money.

"You have not given me all the wood yet," said the barber. "I must have the pack-saddle (which is chiefly made of wood) into the bargain, that was our agreement."

"How!" said the other in great amazement, "who ever heard of such a bargain? It is impossible."

In short, after much altercation, the over-bearing barber seized the pack-saddle, wood and all, and sent away the peasant in great distress. He immediately ran to the Kadi, stating his grief; but, being one of the barber's customers, the Kadi refused to hear the case. The wood-cutter then applied to a higher judge; he also patronized Ali Sakal, and made light of the complaint. The poor man then applied to the Mufti himself, who, having pondered the question, said it was too difficult a case for him to decide, no provision being made for it in the Koran. The wood-cutter was not disheartened, but forthwith got a scribe to write a petition to the Caliph, which he duly presented on Friday, the day when His Highness went to the mosque in state. Haroun al Raschid's punctuality in reading petitions is well known, and it was not long before the wood-cutter was called into his presence. When he approached the Caliph he kneeled and kissed the ground and then placed his arms straight before him, his hand covered with the sleeve of his tunic, and his feet close together, awaited the decision.

"Friend," said the Caliph, "the barber has words on his side, you have equity on yours. The law must be defined by words, and agreements must be made by words; the former must have its course or it is nothing; and agreements be kept, or there would be no faith between man and man; but—." Then calling the wood-cutter close to him, the Caliph whispered something in his ear, and sent him away quite satisfied. Here the story-teller made a pause in his narrative, and holding up a tin cup, said: "Now, friends, if you will give me something I will tell you what the Caliph said to the wood-cutter." The piastres came in rather plentifully. Well, then, continued he, the Caliph whispered to the wood-cutter what to do in order to get satisfaction from the barber. And what that was I will now relate. The wood-cutter having made his obeisance, returned to his ass, which was tied without, took it by the halter, and proceeded to his home. A few days after he applied to the barber, as if nothing had happened between them, requesting that he and a companion of his from the country might be shaved. The price at which both operations were to be performed was settled. When the wood-cutter's crown had been properly shorn, Ali Sakal asked him where his companion was.

"He is just standing without here," said the other, "but he shall come in."

Accordingly he went out, and returned, leading his ass after him by the halter.

"This is my companion," said he, "and you must shave him."

"Shave him!" exclaimed the barber, in the greatest surprise: "it is enough that I have condescended to demean myself by touching you and do you insult me by asking me to shave your beast? Away with you, or I will thrash you both." And forthwith he drove them out of the shop.

The wood-cutter immediately went to the Caliph. "'Tis well," said the Commander of the Faithful. "Bring Ali Sakal with his brushes and razors instantly here," he exclaimed to his Vizier, and in the course of ten minutes the barber stood before him.

"Why do you refuse to shave this man's companion?" asked the Caliph. "was not that your agreement?

Ali kissed the ground and answered, "'Tis true, O Caliph, that such was our agreement, but who ever made a companion of an ass before? Or who ever thought of treating an ass as a true believer?

"You may say right;" replied the Caliph, "but who ever thought of a pack-saddle being included in a load of wood? No, no, it is a bargain, and you must keep it. To the ass immediately!"

The barber was then obliged to prepare a great quantity of soap, lather the beast and shave him from head to foot. The poor wood-cutter was then dismissed, and all Bagdad celebrated the justice of the Commander of the Faithful.

A FRIEND of Dean Swift's one day sent him a turbot as a present by a servant-lad, who had frequently been on similar errands, but had never received anything from the Dean for his trouble. Having gained admission, he opened the study door, and putting down the fish on the floor, cried out, rudely, "Master has sent you a turbot!"

"Young man," said the Dean, rising from his easy chair, "is that the way you deliver a message? Let me teach you better manners. Sit down in the chair, we will change places, and I will show you how to behave in future."

The boy sat down, and the Dean going out, came up to the door, and making a low bow, said: "Sir, master presents his kind compliments, hopes you are well, and requests your acceptance of a small present."

"Does he?" replied the boy. "Return him my best thanks, and there's half a crown for yourself."

The Dean thus caught in his own trap, laughed heartily, and gave the boy a crown for ready wit.

There is a good deal of dry humor in the American press. The following extract from the Louisville Courier is a gem in its way: "The New York Sun, which is seldom satisfied with things, objects to the proportions of a rattlesnake recently seen in Carter county, in this State, and described as reaching from one side of the road to the other, while its body was as big as an ordinary churn. The Sun says that was a 'very badly proportioned snake,' and that it 'should have been a good deal longer or else a good deal thinner.' We should like to know who is running the snakes of this State, herself or the editor of the New York Sun. When things come to such a pass that New York arrogates to herself the right to dictate to Kentucky the size and shape of her serpents, it is high time for the trumpet to sound to arms and for the sword to leap from its scabbard."

A KNOWING FRENCHMEN.—At breakfast one morning, in that quiet and comfortable old inn, the White Swan, in New England, a foreigner made quick dispatch with the eggs. Thrusting his spoon into the middle, he drew out the yolk, devoured it and passed on to the next. When he got to his seventh egg, an old farmer, who had already been prejudiced against Monsieur by his moustaches, could brook the extravagance no longer, and speaking up, said:

"Why, sir, do you leave all the white? How is Mrs. Lockwood to afford to provide breakfast at that rate?"

"Vy," replied the outside barbarian, "in a yolk is de chicken; de vite de fedders! Am I to make one bolster of my belly?"

The farmer was dumb-founded.

The Brooklyn Bridge.

A New York paper, speaking of the East River Bridge, says that the pressure of air in the caisson now building is thirty pounds to the square inch, or twice the ordinary atmospheric pressure. Once in the lock and the entrance closed, it becomes necessary to have an equal amount of pressure before the door into the caisson can be opened. To this end air is forced into the lock until the right pressure is reached.

Between twenty and thirty men are at work in the chambers. The lowest point reached in the excavations is within nine feet of the rock. The average depth of the sand, however, is about fifteen feet. Already boulders of trap rock are found imbedded in the quicksand; these are broken up and hoisted out by means of an apparatus similar to a dredging-machine, working in a huge shaft filled with water. The men work in relays or "watches," each "watch" remaining in the caisson for three hours. Working in that compressed atmosphere has its disadvantages, and the men complain of cramps sometimes, which, judging from their description, must be very painful, as one of the men likened it to "tearin' the flesh from yer leg." The low, dim-lighted chambers, filled with mist, the shining pools of water, and the men toiling in the flaming gas-light amid the rushing, rumbling noise of the sand syphons, combine to make an interesting scene not easily forgotten. "Try and whistle," suggested the conductor of the party, and try they did, but without success. Pucker their lips, and blow as hard as they could, no sound approaching a whistle can be produced. The voice, too, had a strange, unnatural sound, as though uttered in a high key, all due to the compressed atmosphere.

The interior of the sides of the caisson slopes outward, not unlike the lips of an enormous bell. In fact, the working of the structure is upon nearly the same principle as that of a diving-bell, the pressure of the air keeping out the water. When the bed rock is reached, and the caisson fairly settled upon it, the interior will be filled with concrete and masonry.

Twenty courses of stone have been laid upon the caisson, and the work is being pushed forward as rapidly as possible. At present the work is somewhat retarded for lack of stone, which can not be supplied fast enough. The Company has expended $2,200,000. This includes the amount paid for right of way. They have on hand material amounting to nearly $350,000. Four hundred thousand dollars has been expended for lumber, and $120,000 for machinery. It is worthy of remark that the Company having the stone contract offered $20,000 to be released from their contract. This offer the Company declined, believing that they could not make such advantageous terms elsewhere.

Doubts have been expressed as to the stability of so huge a structure.. In regard to this point, the superintendent states that the opinions of the most distinguished engineers have been sought upon the subject, and they fully indorse the plans. It has been thought by some that it would be necessary to build a pier in the middle of the river. This would be impossible, from the fact that Congress would never permit it, and even if it were built vessels would be constantly carried against it by the force of the current and injured, and the Company continually involved in suits for damages. A wind traveling at the rate of sixty miles an hour, which is an extreme case, would not sway the bridge, even at its great elevation. It is expected that steam cars will run across the bridge at the rate of twenty miles an hour. The entire cost of the structure, when completed, is estimated at $12,000,000. This is thought to be an outside figure.

Ostrich Farms.

The raising of the ostrich in a tame state, for its feathers, is now carried on extensively in Africa. The birds are kept in inclosures, and fed on lucerne, with which the inclosure is planted. Every eight months they are plucked, some extracting the quill at once, and others cutting the quill a little above its insertion, and then removing the roots a couple of months latter. The latter method is said to give better results with less injury to the bird. The yield is about fifty dollars per annum for each bird.

In breeding it is found to be best to allow one female to each male, though in the wild state five females are often attached to a single male. There are usually two broods in a year, and the male and female sit on the eggs by turns, the male generally taking the largest share of this duty. The female takes chief charge of the brood after it is hatched. The young are reared on chopped lucerne, and as they get older a little grain is given to them; they also require abundance of water, and a liberal supply of pulverized quartz and small bones. When grown, no food suits them better than chopped lucerne or trefoil, with an occasional supply of cabbage, fruit, and grain.—Scribner's for June.

In the Paris Court of Correctional Police, recently, a lady, by no means young, advanced coquettishly to the witness-stand to give her testimony.

"What is your name?"

"Virginie Loustato."

"What is your age?"

"Twenty-five." (Exclamations of incredulity from the audience.)

The lady's evidence being taken, she regained her place, still coquettishly bridling; and the next witness was introduced. This one was a full-grown young man.

"Your name?" said the judge.

"Isadore Loustato."

"Your age?"

"Twenty-seven years."

"Are you a relative of the last witness?"

"I am her son."

"Ah, well," murmured the magistrate, "your mother must have married very young."

The Norwich Bulletin says that two gentlemen awoke on Wednesday night with the conviction that they had been poisoned. They think the vinegar in which the clams were preserved must have been kept in a copper kettle and so become poisoned

The more they tried to explain, the more he thanked them, and finally walked off and got as drunk as he could for one so deaf.

Our Candidates.

We refer our readers to the official proceedings for the detailed doings of the Convention. There were but two cases in which a ballot became necessary. In one of those there had been no instructions to the Delegates; and in the other, among the three Candidates, no one had a clear majority. Apparently the very best feeling prevailed, and the indications of the popular will were so plain, that no room was left for disaffection.

For President Judge there was no opposition to the Hon. William Elwell who has presided in the district for years with distinguished ability, impartiality and courtesy.

For Delegate to the Constitutional Convention there was entire unanimity in favor of Col. John G. Freeze, who is too well known to the people of this county to require any recommendation at our hands.

For Senator, Charles G. Barkley was selected on the third ballot. He is a member of the bar, has been Chairman of the County Committee, Superintendent of Common Schools and Principal of the Normal School, and to be chosen over two such distinguished competitors is a high compliment to his merits.

For Member, Charles B. Brockway has been returned without opposition, and we can promise for him that he will be as faithful, as vigilant and as attentive in the future as in the past.

For Prothonotary, B. F. Zarr had no competitor in the convention. He is so well known as the efficient and obliging clerk of Gen. Ent, that all men have assurance that he will be a careful and attentive head of the department. The south side of the river has had no representative in that office for years and Mr. Zarr's nomination was a recognition of that fact and of the claims of the large German population in that part of the county.

For Register and Recorder, W. H. Jacoby was re-nominated, having given such complete satisfaction during his past term that no one appeared to contest the race with him.

For County Commissioner, William Lawton, of Greenwood was selected. Those who know him speak of him with high praise, and his vote over the able and well known gentlemen who were candidates says more for him than columns of praise.

For Auditor, U. J. Campbell of Main was chosen. He is an energetic and capable merchant, familiar with accounts and well fitted to discharge the duties of the office with knowledge and discretion. He has filled the office before, and with credit.

For a ticket composed of such men we have no hesitation in asking the support of all good citizens of the county and we hope that the vote in October may prove conclusively that the people have in it all faith and confidence.

Edward Herrick Jr. Chairman of the Bradford County Democratic Committee has written to the New York Tribune that at different Post-offices in that County subscribers to the Tribune found in their boxes copies of the New York Times, a violent Grant paper, and were told when they asked for their own paper, that the Times was the better sheet of the two and that, being furnished gratis it was much better for them. These, outrageous proceedings explain the intent and meaning of the circular issued by the Post Master at Towanda and published by us, calling on postmasters for a list of subscribers to the Tribune. The aim of the Grantites is to suppress all papers and documents opposing the re-election of Grant. Mr. Mercur seems to be very anxious to save himself in his own county and this style of swindle he perhaps thinks will do so. A party which stoops so low to conquer deserves and will meet with defeat.

$78,000 Missing.—A little irregularity in the accounts of pious and patriotic General Howard has been discovered in closing up the affairs of the Freedmen's Bureau. In other words the appropriation of seventy-eight thousand dollars made by Congress, exclusively for hospital purposes, appears to be missing. It is claimed that it was put in with the general fund and used for other purposes, but by what authority this course was pursued, if the claim be true, is not explained. The hospital department is twenty-eight thousand dollars in debt for the supplies furnished, and no funds to pay the demand. Of course a raid will be made on the treasury to meet it.

Auditor General John F. Hartranft, one of the Ring organs informs us, is "an intelligent member of the bar of Montgomery county." If he is a lawyer he should be acquainted with Purdon's Digest, and if he is intelligent he ought to be able to comprehend the provisions on pages 228-9, P. L. 70 and 73, imposing fines and penalties on any officer of the Commonwealth, or of any city, county, borough, or township thereof, who loans, with or without interest therefor, any money or valuable security which may be in his keeping by virtue of his office. How can he square his conduct as a public official with this the law of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania?—Press.

Miss Nellie Grant, the President's daughter whilst in England wrote a letter to the Queen and received a letter in reply. Both of these have been made public and for the purpose of serving as campaign documents to prove Grant's popularity. Of course if a copy of Miss Grant's letter had not been taken for the purpose of handing it to the press, and if the Queen's reply had not also been turned over to the newspapers, no one would ever have heard of them. Ulysses the First wishes his royal claims acknowledged. This is good—for a Republican country.

The Cameron Ring.

The Camerons (I use the term to cover a big ring) are now more anxious than ever they were to hold the Auditor-General's office and the State Treasury, while the possession of a Governor for the next three years is of imperative importance. Let me give you the situation: First. The Camerons now own and control the State Treasurer. They are his principal bondsmen, and reap the largest portion of the aggregate of gains secured by banking with the funds of the commonwealth. Directly and indirectly, Simon Cameron, his son Donald, and his brother William, are the principal shareholders in a bank respectively at Lewisburg, Northumberland, Harrisburg, Middletown, West Chester, Lancaster, Lebanon, and Reading. The banks at Harrisburg and Middletown are controlled by the Camerons, Donald being a paid officer in each, while the others do his work. These banks have deposits of State funds aggregating at least $500,000. All checks for small amounts of money paid by the State Treasurer are drawn on the Cameron bank here. You can see by these facts why the Camerons are so anxious to have Hartranft elected Governor. The Secretary of the Commonwealth is a member, in conjunction with the State Treasurer, and Auditor-General, of the Sinking fund Commissioners. That office, in case Hartranft is elected, will be dictated by Cameron, and then, with an Auditor-General in their interest, and a Treasurer whose election they can purchase, the resources in the sinking fund remain within their grasp and use. For this reason the last Legislature was manipulated to prevent Geary from appointing an Auditor-General who might have been inimical to Cameron's interests, and therefore, to cover up a long secreted series of stupendous frauds, Hartranft's time of office was extended. Senator Billingfelt, at the time this was done, pleaded in vain to let a little ray of light penetrate into the Treasury, which was not done. That would have been fatal, for the reason—Second. The Camerons are State Treasurer Mackey's principal bondsmen. By a Philadelphia broker's failure Mr. Mackey lost a fraction less than one hundred thousand dollars. He is a poor man. But his loss had to be made up. How was this to be done? Not by the Camerons. Hence Mackey opens a check on a Pittsburg bank for the amount lost by the failure of the Philadelphia broker, which check was never cashed, but deposited in the vaults of the Treasury, where it yet remains, with innumerable other similar papers, all counted as cash, when they are really not worth a farthing more than their weight on the ragman's scales. The vault of the State Treasury is the most polluted locality in the State government, and in its dark and impenetrable recesses there are more frauds hidden than those which damned the Tammany Ring of New York, all of which the Camerons are resolutely determined shall not be exposed. If they can get Mackey's accounts sealed at the expiration of his present term, and his vault accounts turned over as cash to his successor, whoever that may be, it will ease the Camerons not less than one hundred thousand dollars, and for aught I now know, it may save them from paying double that sum. Is it strange, then, that the Camerons fight for the control of the Auditor-General's office and the State Treasury? With half a million of outstanding capital in favor of the State in their control, and with a quarter of a million of responsibility in the vault of the Treasury, it is not surprising that they struggle to keep the Auditor under their thumb, to carry the State Treasury in their pocket, and to elect a Governor whom they can lead by the ear.—Press

Official Looseness.

General Hartranft having been asked by the Evans investigation committee to give a statement of the condition of accounts between Pennsylvania and George O. Evans, testified as follows: "The claims on file at Washington, which Mr. Evans has undertaken to settle, amount to $3,172,218.19; there were three installments filed in 1862 and 1863, amounting to $2,000,000 and a fraction; those claims were prepared and put in a book—which is on file in my office—by Mr. M'Michael." The book prepared by Mr. M'Michael must have been filed in the auditor general's office as early as the spring of 1863 and we may therefore reasonably assume that it was in the office when General Hartranft entered upon his first term in May, 1866. Here, then, was the evidence, in his own possession, of a large unsettled account between the state and the national government. The fifteenth section of the act of 1811 very plainly prescribes the duty of the auditor general in such a case. It is in these words; "The auditor general shall annually report to the legislature a list of the accounts which remain unsettled, and the reason therefor."

Why did the auditor general fail to comply with the requirements of this law? He does not plead ignorance of the condition of the claims filed by M'Michael? On the contrary he testifies that he was informed of their condition.

In 1870 General Hartranft himself gave Evans over a million of dollars worth of claims. Of the condition of these claims he was fully cognizant, but he made no report to the legislature of 1871, as the law required. Are we to look for the reason for this neglect of duty in the fact that the auditing officer accepted a loan of $7,000 from the agent about the time that such report should have been made? The two circumstances cannot be separated. In the spring of 1871 the law required from John F. Hartranft a report to the Legislature of the condition of the claims which he had placed in the hands of Evans one year before, and about the time that this report should have been made he accepted from the agent, who was benefited by the failure to report, a loan of $7,000, which he did not repay until that agent's nefarious transactions were dragged to the light. It is fair to assume that the loan was in the nature of a consideration. For $7,000 Auditor General Hartranft stipulated disobedience to the law. For $7,000 General Hartranft conspired with George O. Evans to defraud the state treasury.

And now this same John F. Hartranft is a candidate for the office of governor. Honest republicans are asked to vote for him, and about the ears of those who have the hardihood to refuse, the corrupt ring that nominated him snap the party lash and cry treason! But it is apparent that those who have "highly resolved" to destroy the ring do not fear it nor the party lash. Charles R. Buckalew, whose integrity is unquestioned, whose capacity is undoubted and whose fitness in every respect is conceded, even by his enemies, to be far superior to that of his opponent, will receive the votes of many thousands of honest republicans who regard good and economical government of much greater importance than fealty to a party whose controlling power is a corrupt ring.—Patriot.

John D. Bush, a prominent Democrat, and George H. Hamilton, a well-known Republican of Dubuque, have deposited $5,000 as a bet on the Presidential election as follows: $100 on every State in the Union except Florida. Bush also bets $1,000 that Grant will not carry three States in the electoral college; $400 that Grant don't carry ten States.

Caldwell, the Republican candidate for Governor in North Carolina, was elected Lieut, Governor of that State in 1868 by a majority of 18,641, and became Governor by the impeachment of Holden. At the recent election his majority is said to be about 1000—a loss of over 17,000!

Blaine Answered.

A VIGOROUS REPLY FROM SENATOR SUMNER.

Senator Sumner thus replies to Speaker Blaine:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5, 1872.

DEAR SIR:—I have seen the letter addressed to me by you through the public prints, and I notice especially that, while animadverting upon my support of Horace Greeley, you say not one word in vindication of that compound of pretensions known as Grantism, in contradistinction to Republicanism, which you would install anew in the Government. You are greatly concerned about the company I keep. To quiet this solicitude, I beg to say that, in joining the Republicans who brought forward an original Abolitionist, I find myself, with so many others, devoted to the cause I have served always, that I had not missed you until you hastened to report absence; nor had I taken account of the "Southern Secessionists," who, as you aver, are now cooperating with me in support of this original Abolitionist, except to rejoice that, if among my former associates, some like yourself, hesitate, their places are supplied in an unexpected quarter.

PEACE AND RECONCILIATION RATHER THAN OLD ENMITIES.

You entirely misapprehend me when you introduce an incident of the past and build on it an argument why I should not support Horace Geeley. What has Preston Brooks to do with the Presidential election? Never while a sufferer did anybody hear me speak of him in unkindness, and now, after the lapse of more than half a generation, I will not unite with you in dragging him from the grave where he sleeps, to aggregate the passions of a political conflict, and arrest the longing for concord. And here is the essential difference between you and me at this juncture. I seize the opportunity to make the equal rights of all secure through peace and reconciliation. But this infinite boon you would postpone. Seven years have passed since we laid aside our arms; but unhappily during all this period there has been a hostile spirit toward each other, while the rights of colored fellow-citizens have been in perpetual question. Seven years mark a natural period of human life. Should not the spirit be changed with the body? Can we not, after seven years, commence a new life, especially when those once our foes repeat the saying, "Thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God?" I declare my preference for an original Abolitionist as President, and you seek to create a diversion by crying out that Democrats will support him. To which I reply, so much the better. Their support is the assurance that the cause he has so constantly guarded, whether of equal rights or reconciliation, is accepted by Democrats, and this is the pledge of a true union beyond anything in our history. It is a victory of ideas, without which all other victories must fail. To intensify your allegation, you insist that I am ranged with Jefferson Davis and Robert Toombs; but pardon me, nobody knows how the former will vote, while Robert Toombs is boisterous against Horace Greeley, and with him are Stephens, Wise and Mosby. This is all very poor, and I mention it only to exhibit the character of your attempt.

THE BUGBEAR OF A DEMOCRATIC CONGRESS.

In the same spirit you seek to avoid the real issue by holding up the possibility of what you call a Democratic Administration, and you have the courage to assert, as within my knowledge, that by the election of Greeley Congress is handed over to the control of the party who have positively denied the rights of the black men. You say that I know this. Mr. Speaker, I know no such thing, and you should be sufficiently truthful not to assert it. I am entirely satisfied that a canvass like the present, where the principles declared at Cincinnati are openly accepted on one side and not contested on the other, must result in a larger number of Congress representatives sincerely devoted to the rights of the colored citizen than ever before. The Democrats will be pledged as never before, to the ruling principle that all men are equal before the law, and also to the three Constitutional Amendments with the clause in each empowering Congress to enforce the same by appropriate legislation. But, besides Democrats, there will be the Liberal Republicans pledged likewise, and also your peculiar associates, who, I trust, will not betray the cause. Senators and Representatives calling themselves Republicans have been latterly in large majority in both Houses; but the final measure of Civil Rights to which you refer, though urged by me almost daily, has failed to become law, less, I fear, from Democratic opposition than from Republican lukewarmness and the want of support in the President.

THE FIRST PRESIDENT REPRESENTING EQUAL RIGHTS.

The great issue which the people are called to decide in November is on the President, and nobody knows better than yourself that the House of Representatives chosen at the same time will naturally harmonize with him. So it has been in our history. Now, harmony with Horace Greeley involves what I most desire. With such a President, Congress will be changed. For the first time since the war the equal rights of all will have a declared representative at the head of the Government, whose presence there will be of higher significance than that of any victor of war, being not only a testimony, but a constant motive power in this great cause. Opposition, whether open hostility or more subtle treachery, will yield to the steady influence of such a representative. Therefore, in looking to the President, I look also to Congress, which will take its character in a large measure from him. In choosing Horace Greeley, we do the best we can for the whole Government, not only in the Executive, but in the Legislative branch, while we decline to support nepotism, repayment of personal gifts by official patronage, seizure of the war powers and indignity to the Black Republic, and the various incapacity exhibited by the President and the rings by which he governs, none of which can you defend. You know well that the rings are already condemned by the American people.

GREELEY WITH ANY CONGRESS PREFERABLE TO GRANT WITH HIS RINGS.

For myself, I say plainly, and without hesitation, that I prefer Horace Greeley with any Congress possible, on the Cincinnati platform, to President Grant with his pretensions and his rings, a vote for whom involves the support of all his pretensions, with prolonged power in all the rings. There must be another influence and another example. The Administration in all its parts is impressed by the President. Let his soul be enlarged with the sentiment of justice, quickened by industry, and not only the two Houses of Congress, but the whole country will feel the irresistible authority overspreading, pervading, permeating everywhere. Therefore, in proportion as you are earnest for the rights of the colored citizens and place them above all partisan triumph, you will be glad to support the candidate whose heart has always throbbed for humanity. The country needs such a motive power in the White House, it needs a generous fountain there, in one word, it needs somebody different from the present incumbent, and nobody knows this better than Speaker Blaine. The personal imputation you make upon me, I repel with the indignation of an honest man. I was a faithful supporter of the President until somewhat tardily awakened by his painful conduct on the Island of Santo Domingo, involving seizure of the war power in violation of the Constitution, and indignity to the Black Republic in violation of international law; and when I remonstrated against the intolerable outrages, I was set upon by those acting in his behalf. Such is the origin of my opposition. I could not have done less without failure in the duty which is with me the rule of life; nor can I doubt that when partisan sentiments are less active you will regret the wrong you have done me. Meanwhile I appeal confidently to the candid judgment of those who, amidst all present differences of opinion, unite in the great objects, far above party or President, to which my life is devoted. I am, Sir, your obedient servant.

CHARLES SUMNER.

To the Honorable Speaker Blaine.

Mercur's Love for Soldiers.

An Exhibition of Petty Tyranny.

Let everybody read the following, and then decide whether Ulysses Mercur is a proper man for Judge of the Supreme Court. Because a soldier, who had honorably served in the army for four years, saw proper to vote as his conscience dictated, Mr. Mercur pursued him with devilish malignity, and did his best to rob him of employment, succeeding so far as official power was concerned!

Capt. Trout commanded the first company that entered the service from Bradford county, fought bravely at Spottsylvania, Coal Harbor, Petersburg, and in about twenty other engagements, and finally received an honorable discharge after four years of hard service. Yet this brave but humble soldier was afterward driven from all Government employment by Mr. Mercur because he would not violate his conscience and his duty, as a freeman, and vote for the same Mr. Mercur for Congress! But read Capt. Trout's affidavit, to-wit:

Lycoming County, ss:

Personally appeared before me the subscriber, a Justice of the Peace in and for said county, A. J. Trout, who, being duly sworn according to law, did depose and say, "that in the year 1866, I had charge of the printing in the Freedmen's Bureau at Washington, D. C., at a salary of $1,800 per annum. I had served prior to that time in the Union army, from which I had been honorably discharged after four years service; that Ulysses Mercur, who is the nominee of the Republican party for Judge of the Supreme Court, was at that time a member of Congress, and a candidate for re-election—that he came to me and solicited me to vote for him. I informed him that I 'could not, for he did not represent my politics.' He replied 'You had better.' A few days after this conversation several of his most intimate political friends came to me and informed me that I had better vote for him, or 'my head would come off.' After the said election said Mercur went to General Howard, who had charge of the Bureau where I was employed, and insisted upon my being discharged, saying to the General that I was a 'copperhead of the rankest type.' Thereupon the General came to me and informed me of what Mr. Mercur had said, adding that although he knew that I had an honorable discharge from the army, and had served the country faithfully, yet felt obliged to discharge me, as he needed Mr. Mercur's influence more than he needed my labor. After being thus discharged I procured a situation at the Government printing office, but through the influence of this same Mercur I was discharged from there, and was thus compelled to leave the city."

A. J. TROUT.

Sworn and subscribed before me this 5th day of August, 1872.

DANIEL REPASS, J. P.

The government has bought the old yellow trunks full of Rebel documents, and paid $75,000 for the lot. They have been in the market for a long time, but Mr. Seward was too astute to be caught investing in such worthless stuff. The Administration caught at the bait, hoping to find something that could be used as a campaign document against the Liberals. So it would seem that the government of the United States is merely a National Committee for the reelection of President Grant.—Golden Age.

Frederick Grant, the son of the President, who graduated the third from the foot of his class, was granted six months' leave of absence and sent to Europe on an United States ship with the General of the army for an escort. This youth who was educated at the expense of the Nation can go off junketing for months, at public cost, whilst the brighter members of this class have to join their regiments and earn their salaries. There's favoritism for you.

A Grant man in Utica having had an opportunity to see Grant on his recent visit to that city, writes to the Utica Observer as follows: "Is there any penalty for signing a call for a Grant meeting, and, after you have seen Mr. Murphy's President and joined in the general disgust, supporting Greeley?" To which the editor replies: "There is no penalty under the laws of this State. In North Carolina they would convict a man of Ku Klux outrage and send him to the Albany penitentiary."

The New York Sun publishes a long article charging President Grant with suppressing an exposure of the payment of fraudulent claims to the amount of $10,000,000. It charges that Grant, while Secretary of war ad interim, hindered an investigation and prevented the publishing of evidence showing the payment of the fraudulent claims by Paymaster-General Brice; that though Brice was removed by President Johnson, Grant reinstated him immediately after his inauguration. These facts are supported by documentary evidence, including the suppressed report on the subject, prepared at the time by a Special Committee of the House of Representatives.

"It is worse than foolishness to attempt to convict Greeley of complicity with Jacob Thompson in his infamous schemes to burn Northern cities. Greeley is not that kind of a man," says the Cincinnati Gazette, a Grant paper.

Pennsylvania has 65,294 colored inhabitants, but with good management the Grant managers hope to get at least 130,588 colored votes out of them.

While Mr. Boutwell was a member of Congress he wanted to impeach Johnson because two members of his Cabinet attended a political convention. Now nearly all of Grant's Cabinet travel around the country making political speeches, and Boutwell does not object but goes himself.

Campaign Notes.

Five hundred and eighty-six Germans have formed themselves into a Greeley club at Springfield, Illinois.

And now Gen. William Schouler, of Massachusetts, has forsaken the party of "Addition, Division, and Silence."

Congressman Dawes, while on his way to the Adirondacks, informed one of his friends in New York city that he should do nothing for Grant in this campaign.

Senator Sumner denies that he has written, or is writing a letter in reply to William Lloyd Garrison, as he has not even read the letter of Garrison.

Cara, Kansas, which contains but ten democrats, has been thoroughly canvassed, and shows sixty-eight majority for Greeley.

Another Grant committeeman bolts. E. R. Smith, of Le Seuer, a member of the Minnesota republican state committee, has declared for Greeley.

A number of our exchanges are printing an item in regard to five ex-mayors of the republican cities of Pittsburg and Allegheny being for Greeley, and they might truthfully add that the present mayor of Pittsburg is also for Greeley.—Pittsburg Post.

"Grant's carpet-baggers," said Mr. Beck in his Frankford speech, "have robbed South Carolina of twenty-nine millions, and Governor Scott, out of his stealings, has built himself, at his home in Marietta, Ohio, a house that cost sixty thousand."

Not all the women are able to discover the beauties of Grantism. Mrs. Margaret W. Campbell has written a good letter to the Woman's Journal, pointing out the folly of identifying the woman movement with the Republican party, and Miss Kate Stanton proposes to take the stump for Mr. Greeley.

"I have been a member of Congress 13 years, and truth compels me to say that during that period the most wasteful and extravagant use of the public money, and the least accountability of those who have disbursed, have been during the present Administration."—Gen. Farnsworth, Republican Congressman from Illinois.

One little example will show how thoroughly the candidacy of Mr. Greeley has divided the Republican party. The Republican vote of Dixon, Lee county, Illinois, was 372 in 1870 and 376 in 1871. Ninety-eight of these Republicans, or nearly twenty-five per cent. of the whole number, have attached their names to a published call for a Liberal Republican organization.

A Washington lady has bet a $5,000 dwellinghouse against $1,000 in cash that Greeley will be elected.

Hon. Galusha A. Grow, formerly Republican Congressman from this State, has written a letter in favor of Greeley. It is dated Houston, Texas, the 5th of August.

E. A. Rollins, who recently resigned as Chairman of the New Hampshire Grant State Central Committee, and one of the prominent Republican candidates for United States Senator before the last Legislature, has now declared for Greeley.

The Grant National Committee is daily receiving private appeals for money, the applicants asserting that they must have it immediately or all will be lost.

The St. Louis Republican suggests the revival of the American party, and offers as a ticket. "For President, Spotted Tail, of the Rocky Mountains; for Vice-President, Henry Wilson, of Massachusetts."

The following Generals in the Union army during our late civil war support Greeley and Brown: Hooker, Hancock, McClernand, Kilpatrick, Pleasonton, F. P. Blair, Ward, Wiley, Burns, Whiteley, Buell, Moore, Hazen, Haskell, Banks, Slocum, Mason, Coulter, Burbridge, Schurz, Steadman, Morgan, Heath, McClellan, Banning, Tuttle, Slack, and Kirby Smith.

The New York Day Book drops Blanton Duncan and hoist the Greelrey and Brown flag.

NEWS

A letter to the Boston Post, speaking of Senator Sprague, of Rhode Island, says: "He will publish a letter in a few days defining his position, thus throwing the weight of his immense influence in Rhode Island for Greeley and Brown, and, beyond a doubt, securing that state to the liberals."

Dr. Lowell Mason, the well known musical composer, died in Orange on Sunday. He was eighty-one years of age.

Montana territory last year gave Claggett, republican candidate for delegate to congress, a majority of 413. This territory has just elected Maginnis, liberal, over Claggett by a majority of 300. This in a total vote of 10,000 is a great gain.

The Grand Jury have found an indictment against Mr. Louis J. Jennings, of the New York Times, in the libel suit of General Kilpatrick. The decision was arrived at by an unanimous vote.

A shocking case of a child-murder is reported from Naples, Ill. A man named Hale disappeared from that place a few days ago under suspicious circumstances, and yesterday a grave was discovered near his house, containing the body of his little nephew, whom he is suspected of having whipped to death.

Senator Sumner has written a letter to Mr. Andrew D. White, expressing much surprise at the latter's contradiction of his statement, and reiterating his charges, in which he accuses President Grant of grossly insulting Fred Douglass, who had been at the pains of accompanying the Santo Domingo expedition.

The number of German immigrants arriving at New York last month was 11,335, an increase of 2,610 compared with the number for July, 1871. The total number of Germans arriving since January 1st is 78,386, an increase of 36,721 over the corresponding period of last year.

Advices from Peru state that a revolution was begun by Gutierrez, who assassinated President Balta and proclaimed himself Dictator. The people seized Gutierrez, put him to death, hung his body to a lamp post, and burned the corpse. Senor Pardo has been inaugurated President, and the insurrection is over.

MUTUAL
Fire Insurance.
The Mutual Plan guarantees to the mutually insured the greatest security for the least possible cost. The premium notes are the capital. On this no dividends are paid to the stockholders, but it is simply assessed to pay deficiencies arising after the payment of losses and expenses, which in the COLUMBIA INSURANCE COMPANY, during the total 12½ years of its existence, have averaged but 6½ per centum upon the premium note, being lower than the rates paid in the best solvent stock companies during the same period of time. In insuring at stock rates, the insured must pronounce to himself that he pays every year enough—1st. To form an accumulated fund for emergencies; 2d. To pay large dividends to the capital invested in the Company; 3d. Runs the risk of a "Chicago fire" coming and wiping his Company out of existence. In a Mutual Company he keeps his own reserve in hand until needed, and pays no dividend to capitalists. The mutually insured, being themselves the capitalists, look after the business, its character and its agents in all places, thus protecting each other. For Insurances or Agencies, address

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN JURUBEBA BLOOD PURIFIER
It is not a physic which may give temporary relief to the sufferer for the first few doses, but which, from continued use brings Piles and kindred diseases to aid in weakening the invalid, nor is it a doctored liquor, which, under the popular name of "Bitters" is so extensively palmed off on the public as sovereign remedies, but it is a most powerful Tonic and alterative, pronounced so by the leading medical authorities of London and Paris, and has been long used by the regular physicians of other countries with wonderful remedial results.
Dr. Wells' Extract of Jurubeba retains all the medicinal virtues peculiar to the plant and must be taken as a permanent curative agent.

THERE was an old gentleman from Beaver township in town on the day of the Convention, who has attained the age of seventy-five years and who had never before been in Bloomsburg. His stay-at-home-ativeness was certainly very strongly developed.

THERE was a large attendance at the Democratic County Convention on Tuesday and the streets were well filled by the delegates and their friends. A full report of the Convention proceedings will be found in another column.

CONSTABLE WOODWARD, on the day of the Convention, "scooped up" a couple of individuals who had become greatly discouraged by the combined effects of politics and whisky—'specially the latter. They were fined by President Mendenhall.

PATRICK HESTER who was tried and acquitted for the murder of A. W. Rea in this county has been sentenced to an imprisonment of two years and seven months for leading a riot in Shamokin last May and breaking open a Roman Catholic Cemetery.

GEORGE RABICK, a boy ten or eleven years old was drowned on Tuesday last in the canal near Port Noble. He came from Lewistown and was employed on his father's canal boat. An inquest was held before J. J. Brower Esq. and a verdict of "accidental drowning" was rendered.

ONE of the exciting incidents of our Convention was the close contest for Senatorial Conferees. None of the Candidates were publicly announced and we did not hear the name of M. E. Jackson mentioned until the morning of the Convention. The vote he received is a compliment and he should so consider it.

SOME one unknown to us has laid on our table some of the biggest kind of oats we have even seen. We do not know how many grains the heads contain but the heads of two stalks are seventeen inches long. If the gentleman to whom we are indebted for them can tell us many grains they contain we shall be pleased; we have not patience enough to count them.

BY reference to the proceedings of our County Convention it will be seen that our Congressional Conferees are unpledged and uninstructed. The Convention doubtless intended to leave them free to choose the best and strongest man who might be presented in the District. With a proper candidate we can win, and our conferees are in a position to act independently.

THE horse of Dr. H. C. Hower, attached to a Sewing Machine Wagon, took fright on Wednesday morning last, at the stable and ran furiously down Center Street towards Main, upsetting the wagon, breaking the glass sides thereof and pretty thoroughly shaking up a machine which was inside. The horse was stopped at Brown's Hotel and was found to be uninjured except a cut on one of its hind legs.

ASHLAND has a Buckalew Club numbering 300 members. We ought to have as large a one in this county, and smaller ones in any number. Who will take steps to form such at once? All the votes of Columbia county should be polled at the election in October and there is no better way to ensure this result than the formation of such clubs in every township.

THE inhabitants of Chattanooga, Tenn., are all ready to make affidavit that a basket of fresh-laid eggs was hatched into a basketful of chickens on the way to market last week by the heat of the sun.

This may be true, but if so either the sun is uncommonly hot in that region or else these eggs were only "fresh laid" as regards the placing of them in the basket. It strikes us as eggs-tremely doubtful.

SOME of our subscribers in this town have complained to us that they do not receive their copies of the COLUMBIAN. The carrier positively avers that the papers are left regularly at the houses of the subscribers and we are led to the belief that they are stolen by certain persons whose desire for reading matter is stronger than their wish to keep all of the Commandments. We would be greatly obliged to any one who could detect one of these petty thieves and report the facts to us. He will probably find that method of taking a paper expensive.

THE shower of meteors on Friday and Saturday nights last was magnificent. Most of them were small and of a light yellow color. The greatest number observed in an hour was one hundred and six. Two hundred and forty-one were counted in four hours. It is said to have been the finest display in many years.

WILLIAM WALLACE was arrested on Sunday afternoon by Constable Woodward, charged with threatening to take the life of Mrs. Susan Fisher. It appears that Mrs. Fisher and two young lady friends were sitting in the room with the dead body of Mrs. Fisher's child, when Wallace insisted upon being admitted and upon refusal, abused the ladies in outrageous terms. He was held to bail in the sum of $200 to appear at Court.

THE hot weather which we had fondly hoped had left us for this year, has returned with renewed vigor and the thermometer is again fluctuating near the nineties. The air is even more sultry and depressing than in the hot days of June and July. We notice numerous cases of sunstroke chronicled in the city papers and an increase of the complaints peculiar to summer.

THE members of the Lutheran Church desire to return thanks to the citizens of this place for the very liberal patronage received at their festival, and especially to the "Band" for the music on Saturday evening. The receipts amounted to $129—The Knight of Pythias cane was awarded to Thomas Webb, his box containing $22.40 and and that of Thomas E. Geddis $11.62.

THE Fall Term of the State Normal School of this place opens on the 25th of this month. The Trustees have reduced the price of tuition in the Model School from sixty and eighty to forty and sixty cents per week. The Board of Instruction for this year is equal to any that has been engaged in this school and the success of last term deserves to be followed up with the full patronage of this community.

In the COLUMBIAN of last week we spoke of the statement of an exchange to the effect that on a farm in Massachusetts a second crop of rye had grown and matured after the first crop had been cut. Mr. William Hulmes has shown us a second growth of rye taken from his farm in Benton township. The first crop was cut about the 10th of July and stalks of this second yield have attained the height of thirty inches and bear small heads very well filled. This is certainly an unusual thing.

ON Sunday morning at about one o'clock policeman Noble arrested a young man in East Bloomsburg for disorderly conduct and was taking him to the Lock-up, when he was assaulted by a young man named Luther Rupert who endeavored to rescue the prisoner. In this he was not successful, as Mr. Noble took his prisoner to safe quarters and locked him up, Rupert was arrested on Monday by constable Woodward on a warrant issued by J. J. Brower Esq. and bound over in the sum of $100 to appear at Court.

SOME investigating philosopher, not having before his eyes the comfort or happiness of his fellow creatures, has announced the dreadful fact, the result of long and patient study, that there are two distinct species of mosquitoes, one of which sleeps by day and preys on mankind at night, the other feeding only in the day time. It may afford our readers some relief to know that New Jersey at presents has the monopoly of these daylight marauders, but there is no telling when they may enter this State in search of victims.

The 12th of August just passed was the day on which it was predicted that an immense Comet was to come in collision with the earth and thereby knock our small planet into little bits or into the sun to be burned up. Of course, as we still live, the comet did not put in an appearance, greatly to the relief of thousands of people who put faith in the prediction and confidently expected to be knocked into space in the twinkling of an eye. Prof. Plantamour, the astronomer to whom the story is imputed, we hear indignantly denies having said any such thing and we don't wonder at it, but if we were Plantamour we would keep remarkably quiet for a time and aloof from our friends and neighbors.

THERE was another magnificent display of Northern Lights on Thursday night of last week. The heavens were filled with the quivering, throbbing pulsations of mystic light and the flashes like silver arrows darted hither and thither. At times a deep rose tint overspread the sky then gave place to a pale green which was soon replaced by a silvery sheen sparkling and flashing with diamond-like scintillations. Occasionally a meteor would shoot across the sky or drop suddenly from its place on high leaving a stream of light to mark its path. The whole scene was indescribably lovely and such as it is rarely the good fortune of dwellers in this latitude to witness.

IN MEMORIAM.—At a regular meeting of the Union Sunday School, at Orangeville, held July 26th, 1872, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, It hath pleased an Almighty Providence to remove from our midst the soul of Miss. Anna Mary Laubach, therefore be it

Resolved, That while we humbly submit to the decrees of Him who controls the destinies of the world, in taking from among us our sister, that in her death we have lost a faithful and consistent member and Christian advocate of the Sunday School cause, whose loss we deplore and mourn.

Resolved, That by being thus reminded of the shortness of life and certainty of death, that we apply ourselves more closely to the great work of the Sunday School cause that we may be always ready to say that we have done our whole duty to ourselves and others; that should we be called away like our sister we can, with extended hands, receive the command to depart.

Resolved, That as a special mark of respect to our departed sister, we drape in mourning the Rules, Cards and Room for the space of twenty days.

Resolved, That we tender our sympathies to the bereaved family in handing to them a copy of these resolutions and that the same be sent to the county papers for publications.

J. B. HARMAN,
J. H. ECK,
C. J. MEGARGELL. } Committee.

WE have already alluded to the very large crop of berries this year on the mountains and would mention as further proof that a young son of Mr. William Hulmes recently picked over three pints of whortleberries without changing his position on the top of a rock where he had been stationed, and even then the bushes were not picked clean. Berries must be thick where this can be done.

THE Lock Haven Republican says:—"On Sunday last Jacob Iselman, of Sugar Run, assaulted his wife in almost brutal manner, for allowing her daughter to go to church. He beat her over the head and shoulders with a chair, so that she presents a really pitiably appearance."

We should fancy that a missionary or two might be spared from duty on the coasts of Africa to look after the moral wants of Clinton county, if this sort of thing prevails there to any great extent.

PERHAPS no real medicine ever gained the rapid popularity which Castoria has done. One person relates their experience of its good effects to another. It is a vegetable preparation, perfectly harmless, pleasant to take; does not distress or gripe, but regulates the system, and is sure to operate when all other remedies failed. Any person who has ever used Castoria for Stomach Ache, Constipation, Croup, Flatulency, Worms, Piles, or deranged Liver, will never again use nauseating Oil, Bitter Pills or Narcotic Syrups. The Castoria contains neither Minerals, Morphine nor Alcohol. By its soothing, quieting effect it produces natural sleep, and is particularly adapted to crying and teething children. It costs but 35 cents, and one bottle will save many dollars in doctors' bills. n31-4w

A PERILOUS SEASON.—Glorious and delightful as the Summer weather is, its tropical heat is a severe trial to the vital powers. Even the strongest are sometimes prostrated by its effects. The common phrase applied to this condition of the body is "general debility." Now, general debility arises from, and includes a variety of ailments. The liver is more or less affected, the bowels are either constipated or too much relaxed, the stomach but half performs the work of digestion, the appetite is poor, and the spirits depressed. This is what is called general debility. It is a general derangement of all the physical functions, and requires as a remedy a medicine that will regulate them all. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is especially adapted to this purpose. Its general operation is not confined to a single organ. If the liver is affected, it restores its tone. If the stomach is torpid, it regenerates it. If the nerves are tremulous or weak, it braces and reinforces them. If the mind, which ever sympathizes with the body, is gloomy and despondent, it relieves the difficulty and soon brings the whole mechanism of the body into harmony with the laws of health.

There is no civilized nation in the Western Hemisphere in which the utility of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a tonic, corrective, and antibilious medicine, is not known and appreciated. Throughout the Tropics it is considered, both by the people and the profession, the standard specific. While it is a medicine for all seasons and all climates, it is especially suited to the complaints generated by the weather, being the purest and best vegetable stimulant in the world.

Beware of the Bitters made of acrid and dangerous materials, which unscrupulous parties are endeavoring to foist upon the people. Their name is legion, and the public has no guarantee that they are not poisonous. Adhere to the tried remedy, Hostetter's Bitters, sold only in glass, and never in kegs or barrels. n31-4w

TRUTH AND POETRY.—Milton puts into the mouth of [illegible] words—

"TO BE WEAK IS MISERABLE."

Never was a truer sentiment written than this—supposed to be from the Arch-fiend in his [illegible] and misery. Every victim of nervous debility, or of that depression [illegible] which is one of the accompaniments of dyspepsia and biliousness, can testify to the misery of mind and body which they involve. The motive power of the system is partially paralyzed; the mind is haunted by anxiety and fear, and the sufferer is as incapable of applying himself energetically to any kind of business as if he were under the benumbing influence of a [illegible]. This terrible mental and physical condition [illegible] however, be endured [illegible] for forty-eight hours by any human being. PLANTATION BITTERS is an absolute specific for all the torments which a deranged stomach, a disordered liver, and shattered nerves superinduce.

Important Testimony!

The following letters are among the many we are constantly receiving from persons who have been cured by

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup,
Schenck's Sea Weed Tonic,
AND
Schenck's Mandrake Pills.

Penn's-grove, Salem County, New Jersey.
FEBRUARY 27, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, N. E. corner Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in adding my testimony to that of the many others who have been cured by the efficacy of Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup, Sea Weed Tonic, and Mandrake Pills.

Consumption has been hereditary with my family, most of its members having died of it at early ages. My father and three brothers died at the age of [illegible], one brother at 17, and my sister at 12.

I was, when about 31 years, seized with liver complaint, which rapidly developed into Pulmonary Consumption. I was compelled to relinquish my employment (that of a blacksmith).

I consulted skilful and eminent physicians, and tried many patent nostrums, but without success, so that my friends were sure that there was no hope of my recovery, for I was reduced from 152 pounds to 104, and was not able to do anything without assistance.

By what I now look upon as a Providential interposition, I was induced to try your remedies, and place myself under your treatment, and so rapid and thorough was my recovery, that it seemed as though some [illegible] was at work, and to-day I am as well as at any time during my life. I weigh 152 pounds, am 42 years old, and for [illegible] have been regularly attending to my business, bidding fair to live to a good old age.

I am thankful to you beyond expression for having placed me in a position where I am a benefit instead of a burden to my family.

Your Mandrake Pills are the only medicine I ever use now. I think they are the best in the world.

I can refer you to hundreds of my neighbors who will verify all I have written, and any information any of my fellow citizens may desire will be freely and gladly given, upon receipt of stamp, by Yours, etc.

JOHN C. HEWITT.

Key West, Fla., Feb. 19, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK, N. E. cor. Sixth and Arch streets, Philadelphia.

Dear Sir—Please forward, per first steamer, six bottles Sea Weed Tonic and twelve bottles Pulmonic Syrup.

Your medicines are of such value that I cannot be without them in my household, and in fact no family should be without them.

I have given them a fair test, and openly declare them to be even better than you claim.

Very respectfully yours, &c.

W. A. WHITEHURST.

PHILADELPHIA, March 4, 1872.

DR. J. H. SCHENCK,

Respected Sir—I take pleasure in awarding to you this certificate of the wonderful cure your Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic produced. My throat and bronchial tubes were so highly inflamed that it was almost impossible for me to swallow my food.

I am on a visit to my uncle, Mr. Charles Johnson, No. [illegible] Federal street, who says your medicines raised him from almost death after all other means had failed, and he having, therefore, full confidence in the virtue of your remedies, strongly recommended me to try them. I did so, and in one week from the time I commenced taking them my throat underwent a very great change for the better, so that I could eat my meals without any difficulty or pain. I can scarcely find words to express my gratitude for the early relief your invaluable medicines produced upon me, and I deem it but an act of gratitude to give you the acknowledgment of my appreciation. Yours respectfully,

RACHEL M. JACOBS.
No. [illegible] West Thirty-third street, New York.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,

SEA WEED TONIC,

and MANDRAKE PILLS.

These are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption. Dr. Schenck has been in constant practice over thirty years continually examining lungs, and knows his medicines, if properly taken, will cure Consumption. His Mandrake Pills cleanse the liver and stomach; his Sea Weed Tonic dissolves the food, stimulates the coating of the stomach, and assists it to digest. His Pulmonic Syrup ripens the matter, and nature throws it off without any exertion.

Price of the Pulmonic Syrup and Sea Weed Tonic, $1.25 per bottle, or $7 00 per half dozen. Mandrake Pills 25 cents per box.

Oiling and Blacking Harness.

At this season, the farmer should overhaul, repair, oil and black his harness so they will be pliable in the cold weather, and durable and safe. A correspondent of the Scientific American gives the following method: In the first place, I subject the harness to one or two coats (as the leather may need) of lampblack and castor oil, warmed sufficiently to make it penetrate the stock readily. Then I make about two quarts of warm soap suds, and with a sponge wash the harness. When dry, rub it over with a mixture of oil and tallow, equal parts, with sufficient lampblack to give it color, or what is better, Prussian blue, which gives it a new and fresh look. This compound should be applied sparingly and well rubbed in, which can be quickly done, and will leave a smooth and clean surface.

"By saturating the stock, in the first place, with oil, the soap and water are prevented from penetrating it in the process of washing. When leather is permitted to absorb water or soap, it has an ultimate tendency to harden it. When the harness is washed first (as is generally the case,) the water repels the oil; consequently, in the one case, you have the oil inside of the stock, and in the other you have the soap and water. By oiling first, it softens the dirt, so that it can be washed off in at least one-half the time required when washed before oiling, and also saves the scraping process, which defaces the grain of the leather. It will remain soft much longer from the fact of its being penetrated with oil. The whole process can be accomplished without the delay of waiting for it to dry. Consequently the harness can be oiled in much less time, will remain soft longer, wear longer, and look better than when cleaned by the old method. And I consider these reasons of sufficient importance for every one having a harness to give this method a fair trial."

The English patent harness blacking, which is commended for keeping leather soft, and giving it a good polish, is made by dissolving together over a slow fire three ounces of turpentine, two ounces of white wax; then add one ounce of ivory black and one drachm of indigo, to be well pulverized and mixed together. When the wax and turpentine are dissolved, add the ivory black and indigo, and stir till cold. Apply very thin and brush afterwards.—Rural New Yorker.

STAGGERS IN PIGS.—A correspondent asks information in regard to the cause and management of pigs suffering from what appears to be staggers. The symptoms are as follows:

The pig stands and works its mouth, and froths at the mouth, then staggers and falls as if in a fit. After remaining in that state for a time it recovers, but at last the symptoms prove fatal. Some pigs force their noses against the wall, or into a corner, but the symptoms are always nearly the same. The disease, which is popularly termed staggers, in medical parlance is called epilepsy. It depends usually upon the imperfect nutrition of the brain and nervous system.

In pigs, as well as in other animals, epilepsy is often hereditary. Frequently it is developed by breeding in-and-in. Continued feeding on poor, innutritive fare, such as brewer's wash or Indian corn, or even on such unduly stimulating food as beans or peas, will favor the production of epileptic fits. Wet, foul, uncomfortable beds also lead to epilepsy among young and delicate pigs. In preventing further losses we would advise the attending carefully to cleanliness, comfort and liberal feeding. Supply the small pigs with some good milk and a daily mess of boiled linseed, which is particularly good, as containing a large proportion of oleaginous matter. A few cabbages, grass, dry peas and barley flour will help to vary the dietary.

If the pigs are weakly, ten or twelve drops of the tincture of the chloride of iron may be given twice daily in beer, water-gruel or mash. For the next litter secure a strong, sound, vigorous sire of a strain of blood entirely different from that which has hitherto been used. —Vet. Ed. North British Agriculturist.

SWEET CORN FOR FODDER.—There is no question that farmers have a deal of solicitude every year as to the question of sufficient feed for stock, and when, as was the case last year, the grass crop is short—the inquiry is for some substitute for hay. We recommend sowing of corn. Two crops of it can be raised on the same piece of land. The Southern corn will give a larger yield than any other. The most important is the curing for fodder. We understand that Mr. Wakefield, of Pittsfield, has invented a plan on which he expects to secure a patent for curing and ventilating. It is a simple contrivance, and consists merely in erecting a stack pole with holes bored through it, about four inches apart, being shorter as it approaches the top. The corn is placed upon the stack, the cross-poles being inserted at intervals, which keeps it up so the air circulates through. It can be cured so as to make it fresh and sweet for food for any length of time. It is a good feed for milch cows and stock of all kinds like it, and no other yields so as to pay better with as little expense and trouble.—The Homestead.

CORN FODDER.—Mr. Alexander Reed, of Lockhaven, Clinton county, reports that his practice is to cut up his corn as late as he can, and avoid frost. After husking, the stacks are bound and carefully shocked till cured, then stowed in barn. They are prepared for feed as follows: Each morning and evening the quantity needed for one feeding is cut with a "power cutter," put in a tight box with a mixture of meal bran sprinkled in; boiling water is then poured on, and the box closed with a tight lid, so as to shut out both heat and steam. That steamed at night is warm when fed in the morning, and that in the morning when fed in the afternoon. Mr. Reed states that, prepared in this way, (the cows eat all the butts,) a ton will produce more and much better milk for butter than a ton of the best hay prepared in the same way.

Lice on cattle will decamp if dry sand be applied to their whereabouts. They will apply it themselves, when let alone in the spring of the year, by goring the earth and flinging it over themselves.

Young Folks.

Truthful Sam.

A boy went to live with a man who was accounted a hard master. He never kept his boys; they ran away, or gave notice that they meant to quit, so he was half the time without and in search of a boy. The work was not very hard—opening and sweeping out the shop, chopping wood, going errands, and helping around. At last Sam Fisher went to live with him.

"Sam's a good boy," said his mother."

"I should like to see a boy, now-a-days, that has a spark of goodness in him," growled the master.

It is always bad to begin with a man who has no confidence in you; because, do your best, you are likely to have little credit for it. However, Sam thought he would try. The wages were good, and his mother wanted him to go. Sam had been there but three days, before, in sawing a cross grained stick of wood, he broke the saw. He was a little frightened. He knew he was careful, and he knew he was a pretty good sawyer, too, for a boy of his age. Nevertheless, the saw broke in his hands.

"And Mr. Jones will thrash you for it," said another boy, who was in the wood-house with him.

"Why, of course I didn't mean it, and accidents will happen to the best of folks,' said Sam, looking with a very sorrowful air on the broken saw.

"Mr. Jones never makes allowances,' said the other boy; "I never saw anything like him. That Bill might have stayed, only that he jumped into a hen's nest and broke her eggs. He daren't tell it; but Mr. Jones kept suspecting and suspecting, and laid everything out of the way to Bill, whether Bill was to blame or not, till Bill couldn't stand it, and wouldn't."

"Did he tell Mr. Jones about the eggs?" asked Sam.

"No," said the boy, "he was afraid; Mr. Jones has got such a temper."

"I think he'd better own'd up at once," said Sam.

"I suspect you'll find it better to preach than to practice," said the boy. "I'd run away before I'd tell him;" and soon he turned on his heel and left poor Sam alone with his broken saw.

The poor boy did not feel very comfortable or happy. He shut up the wood-house, walked out into the garden, and then went up to his little chamber under the eves. He wished he could tell Mrs. Jones; but she wasn't sociable, and he had rather not.

"Oh, my God," said Sam falling upon his knees, "help me do the thing that is right."

I don't know what time it was; but when Mr. Jones came into the house, the boy heard him. He got up, crept down stairs and met Mr. Jones in the kitchen.

"Sir," said Sam, "I broke your saw, and I thought I'd come and tell you before you saw it in the morning."

"I should think morning soon enough to tell of your carelessness. Why do you come to-night?"

"Because," said Sam, "I was afraid, if I put it off, I might be tempted to tell a lie about it. I'm sorry I broke it; but I tried to be careful.'

Mr. Jones looked at the boy from head to foot; then, stretching out his hand, "There Sam. That's right, that's right. Go to bed, boy. Never fear. I'm glad the saw broke; it shows the mettle's in you. Go to bed."

Mr. Jones was fairly won. Never were better friends, after that, than Sam and he. Sam thinks justice has not been done to Mr. Jones. If the boys had treated him honestly and "above board," he would have been a good man to live with. It was their conduct that soured and made him suspicious. I do not know how this is; I only know that Sam Fisher finds in Mr. Jones a kind and faithful master.

A Sharp Detective.

A Madrasse had a monkey which he was very fond of. The man had occasion to go on a journey, and took with him money and jewels, and his chum, the monkey. Some rogues determined to rob him of everything he had; accordingly they lay in wait for him, and murdered him. Having secured the money and jewels, they threw the murdered man into a dry well, and having covered it up with twigs and dry leaves, they went home. The monkey who was on the top of a tree, saw the whole of the proceedings, and when the murderers departed, he came down and made tracks for the Tahsildar's house, and by his cries and moans attracted the attention of that functionary. Inviting the Tahsildar, by dumb signs, to follow him, the monkey went to the well, and pointed downwards. The Tahsildar thereupon got men to go down, and of course the body was discovered. The monkey then led the men to the place where the jewels and money were buried. He then took them to the bazaars, and as soon as he caught sight of one of the murderers he ran after him, bit him in the leg, and would not let him go till he was secured. In this way all the murderers were caught. The men, it is said, have confessed their crime, and they now stand committed for trial before the Tellicherry court at the ensuing session. That monkey, we think, ought to be made an inspector of police.—Exchange.

The Old Bears.

BY F. B. C.

A pair of old Bears, finding that their life of robbery paid them but poorly, concluded to beg for a living, so they went to the dwelling of an Ape and asked for bread.

"We hope" said they, "that you will hear us so kindly and supply our wants so willingly that we shall not wish to return to the rude manners of our wild cousins in the forest, who take what they need by force." "O, be silent!" said the wise ape. "Were your teeth yet sound, your limbs strong and your eyes bright, you would to-day be robbers as your wild cousins in the forest are. Here is a loaf of bread! but have done with your boasting, and do not make a virtue of your weakness."

A LITTLE four-year old beset his mother to talk to him and say something funny. "How can I?" she asked, "don't you see how busy I am baking these pies?" "Well, you might say, 'Charley, won't you have a pie?' That would be funny for you."

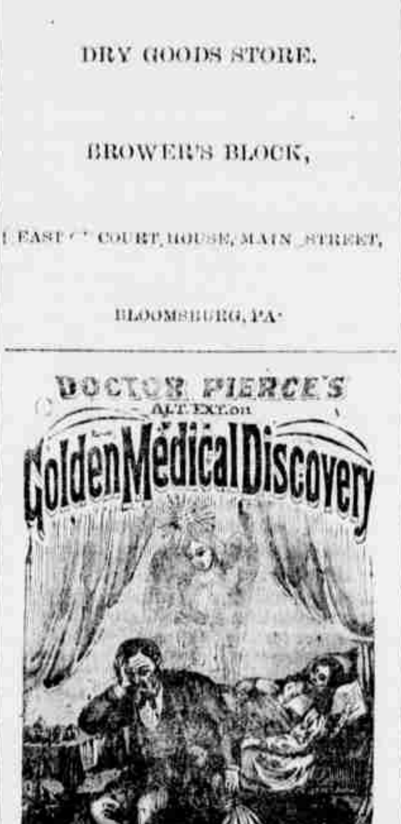
BROWER'S BLOCK,

1 EAST OF COURT HOUSE, MAIN STREET,

BLOOMSBURG, PA.



In the wonderful medicine to which the afflicted are above pointed for relief, the discoverer believes he has combined in harmony more of Nature's most sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick, than were ever before combined in one medicine. The evidence of this fact is found in the great variety of most obstinate diseases which it has been found to conquer. In the cure of Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, and the early stages of Consumption, it has astonished the medical faculty, and eminent physicians pronounce it the greatest medical discovery of the age. While it cures the severest Coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood. By its great and thorough blood purifying properties, it cures all Humors, from the worst Scrofula to a common Blotch, Pimple, or Eruption. Mercurial disease, Mineral Poisons, and their effects, are eradicated, and vigorous health and a sound constitution established. Erysipelas, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Scaly or Rough Skin, in short, all the numerous diseases caused by bad blood, are conquered by this powerful purifying and invigorating medicine.

If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated, have sallow color of skin, or yellowish brown spots on face or body, frequent headache or dizziness, bad taste in mouth, internal heat or chills alternated with hot flashes, low spirits, and gloomy forebodings, irregular appetite, and tongue coated, you are suffering from Torpid Liver or "Biliousness." In many cases of "Liver Complaint" only part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal, as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of Habitual Constipation of the bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise.

The proprietor offers $1,000 reward for a medicine that will equal it for the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended.

Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. Prepared by R. V. Pierce, M. D., Sole Proprietor, at his Chemical Laboratory, [illegible] Buffalo, N. Y. Send your address for a pamphlet.

THE QUEEN

THE AMERICAN

BUTTON-HOLE OVERSEAMING

AND COMPLETE SEWING MACHINE.

—o—

The first and only BUTTON-HOLE AND SEWING MACHINE combined that has made its advent in this or any other country.

☞ The following reasons are given why this is the best

Family Machine to Purchase.

1. Because it will do everything that any machine can do, sewing from the finest to the coarsest material, hemming, felling, cording, braiding, binding gathering and sewing on, at the same time ruffling, quilting, etc., better than any other machine.

2. Because it can work a beautiful button-hole, making as fine a pearl as by the hand.

3. Because it will embroider over the edge making a neat and beautiful border on any garment.

4. Because it will work a beautiful eyelet hole.

5. Because it can do over-hand seaming, by which sheets, pillow cases and the like are sewed over and over.

6. Because the best mechanics pronounce it the best finished and made on the best principle of any machine manufactured.—It has no springs to break; nothing to get out of order.

7. Because it is two machines in one. A BUTTON-HOLE WORKING and SEWING MACHINE combined.

☞ No other Machine can accomplish the kind of sewing stated in Nos. 2, 3, 4, and 5.

Parties using a family sewing machine want a WHOLE MACHINE, one with all the improvements.

It is to last a LIFETIME, and therefore one is wanted that will do the most work, and do it the best: and this machine can do several kinds of sewing not done on ANY OTHER MACHINE, besides doing every kind that all others can do

The American or Plain Sewing Machine.

(Without the button-hole parts), does all that is done on the Combination except button-hole and over-seaming.
